Introduction

A 2-week trip to Suriname for some tropical birding in a corner of South America where we hadn’t been before. After having birded in South America for 4 months already this year it felt good returning to the continent after a few months in the Netherlands. The first 5 days we rented a car and birded around Paramaribo and Zanderij. For the last 10 days we arranged transport and guiding through Fred Pansa (fredecotours@hotmail.com) to visit Zintete Lodge (aka Fredberg) and Brownsberg. Most of the country still consists of endless forest and good birding sites are therefore reachable within a few hours from the airport. In all this made for a very relaxed birding trip that we would definitely recommend.

November is the top season for birdwatching in Suriname since it is at the end of the dry season and just before the short wet season in December/January. We had a few drops of rain in Paramaribo and had a large thunderstorm at the end of the day near Zanderij but otherwise it was hot and humid with Brownsberg being the nice exception where it was slightly cooler, especially at night.

We focused on the regional endemics and other new species and not tried for the highest list possible. Even though we tried hard we missed some species, the range restricted species we did not see:

- Band-tailed Antshrike: tricky antshrike that we tried both around Zintete and at Brownsberg.
- Dusky Purpletuff: We scanned the treetops for 7 days around Zintete which resulted in many Cotinga’s and the Fruitcrow but no Purpletuff.
- Blue-backed Tanager: Occurs in mixed flocks, often with Paradise Tanagers. We scanned many flocks but nothing.
- Campina Thrush: recently split from Black-billed Thrush. Some people see it at Peperpot which seems odd given its stated habitat preferences. Anyway, we paid close attention to the thrushes around Paramaribo and Zanderij but didn’t see any. I would suspect the sand savanna around Zanderij being your best bet.
- White Bellbird: used to be seen at Brownsberg but isn’t regular anymore.
- Red-and-Black Grosbeak: possible at both Brownsberg and Zintete.

What would we do different in hindsight

We spent the first 2 days mainly at Peperpot. Already after the first morning we had seen most of the targets so if you are on a tight schedule one morning is enough. The Zanderij region (Powakka, Zanderij, Colakreek) holds many good birds and we could easily birded some more around Colakreek, but this is not essential for the regional endemics. At Zintete lodge we stayed for 7 nights. This region holds so many good birds that we kept seeing new species every day and spending 6-7 days here is definitely recommended. The last 3 days at Brownsberg the birds were much less numerous than at Zintete and in hindsight 2 days here would have been ok as well. We can’t really comment on the other inland sites and really not sure if you should shorten your time at Zintete/Brownsberg for another site.

Other birders

We there were quite a few other birding groups in Fredberg around our stay and a group of photographers in Fredberg.

Practicalities

Dutch is the official language in Suriname making it very easy to travel around us (and therefor a popular destiny for both Dutch birders), but probably with English you can also get around easily (see Bateman 2018).

Guiding

We arranged to be guided part of trip (for Zintete and Brownsberg). A few days before we left for Zintete we received an email from Fred that one of his guides had to step out for family reasons and that we would be joined for 5 days in Zintete with two other birders. These birders turned out to be Thijs en Brechtje (friends of friends) which worked out very well. We were guided in Zintete by Fabian Pansa (Fred’s brother) and Marchal Lingaard (a more general nature guide). Marchal then also accompanied us to Brownsberg. Fred himself was also present for most of our stay at Zintete, and although Fred clearly is the superior guide who knows every little sound and movement, we are also very enthusiastic about Fabian who has a talent for birdwatching and is learning fast. In hindsight we did not really need a guide for Brownsberg but it was nice that someone arranged all logistics.

Literature

We brought the Birds of Suriname (Arie L.Spaans, Otte H.Ottema, Jan Hein J.M. Ribot). Additionally, the Birds of Northern South America (as an iOS app) was useful on some occasions. For sounds we downloaded a selection from Xeno-Canto.org. In preparation we use several tripreports found on www.cloudbirders.com especially those of

Travelling

We had a direct flight from Amsterdam to Paramaribo. You need a visa to enter the country. We tried to buy the visa at Schiphol airport in Amsterdam but the desk no longer exists. We ended up buying the visa on arrival in Surinam but in the future buying an e-visum online should be the way to go. For the first 5 days we hired a small Toyota Ist through Ross Rental Cars which worked out perfectly. Online we read that you need an international driver’s license to hire a car in Surinam, so we fixed one, but on arrival they never asked for it. Driving was easy with distances being short between birding sites (driving on the left side of the road). On arrival from the airport to Paramaribo we had a lot of traffic and it took around 2 hours to cover the 55km. The main roads of Paramaribo are clearly not built for the increasing number of cars in the country. For navigation abroad we always use maps.me, which also this time worked out just fine. On day 5 we returned the car at the airport and were picked up there with a car Fred arranged to bring us to Zintete lodge. He also arranged the transportation from Zintete to Brownsberg and at the end back to the airport. A lot of birding around Zintete lodge was done by car but this was part of the guiding package.

Eating & Sleeping

We stayed at 4 places which were all booked in advanced: Boutique Hotel Peperpot for the first 3 nights (perfect location from where you can immediately walk into the Peperpot reserve, gps: 5.7749,-55.1325), then Toucan Lodge near Zanderij for 2 nights (basic but very nice place next to Sand Savannah, gps: 5.4742,-55.1821). Both places were booked through booking.com. For the last part Fred arranged our stay at Zintete lodge (7 nights) and Brownsberg (3 nights, gps: 4.9489,-55.1806). Food was good but not exceptional in all places. Only in Zanderij we had to drive to the small villages and arrange food ourselves.

Weather

November is the end of the dry season, we had sunny weather for the entire trip with a few moments when it rained at night. In general the weather is hot and humid, Brownsberg is about 500m above sea level which made a pleasant difference in the evening when it would cool down a little more.

Health and safety

We felt very safe and encountered no health issues. You do not need malaria prophylaxes for Surinam. We did encounter some chiggers an all sites.

Money

Most of the trip was paid to Fred upfront. Cash was easily obtained at an ATM (there is one along the entrance road of the airport, around gps: 5.4568,-55.2035).

Costs

In total we paid around 2700 per person for the entire trip.

- Flight tickets: 783 euro pp Amsterdam – Paramaribo direct flight with KLM
- Car rental: 150,7 euro total for 5 days (Ross car rental)
- Fred tour: 1425 euro pp for 10 day trip (accommodation, transport, food, guiding)
- Other expenses: 410 euro pp (visa on arrival, accommodation and food for first 5 days)

Visited Sites

We took a few GPS points of sites and specific birds, those are available here shorturl.at/ipsD1, and can also be requested in e.g. .kml (for Google Earth), .gpx (for GPS devices and GPS software) format.
Around Paramaribo

Peperpot
This overgrown plantation next to Paramaribo offers a very good birding place where a nice selection of birds can be found in a short distance. The main entrance and visitors center of the park is at 5.800,-55.1187, here you can park the car and enter the trail even when the park is not officially open yet (you pay on the way out). Since the Boutique Hotel Peperpot lies at the other end of the former plantation, we started our first morning by just birding the hotel grounds and along the road which easily resulted in the first of many Arrowhead Piculets and also our only Blood-colored Woodpecker of the trip. We arrived at the back-entrance of the main trail (gps: 5.7812,-55.1387) just before 8 and since the gate was open we entered and birded almost until the visitor center. On the way back we took a different trail through the plantation which ends at the back of the Hotel. This last trail was very good for Sungrebe, which we saw on 3 occasions (mostly around the bridge at gps: 5.7824,-55.1311) and it also held a territory of a Riverbank Warbler (gps: 5.7784,-55.1285). The second day we started at the visitor center and in the afternoon also walked the smaller trail again at the back of the Hotel. Main targets: Arrowhead Piculet, Blood-colored Woodpecker. Other nice birds that we only saw here: Crimson-hooded Manakin, Green-throated Mango, Amazonian Royal Flycatcher and Ashy-headed Greenlet.

Weg naar Zee
Good site for Rufous Crab Hawk and Scarlet Ibis (gps: 5.9007,-55.2258). We visited one afternoon and easily found several Crab Hawks. We scanned east for the Ibis but none were present. We later heard from other birders that there is a small trail through the bushes to reach a point where you can also scan west and where sometimes Ibises are present as well.

Other sites
There are more birding sites around Paramaribo that we did not visit (we made a plan based on our own target list of possible lifers). These sites include: Chocopot (a.o. Crimson-hooded Manakin, Cocoa Trush), Cultuurtuin (Crimson-headed Manakin lek, Blood-colored Woodpecker) and Warappa Kreek (Scarlet Ibis, Rufous Crab Hawk).

Around Zanderij

Powakka
This area holds some interesting sand savannah species. We started South of Powakka at the trail at gps: 5.3415,-55.09488 which according to the tripreports should be the best place for Pale-bellied Mourner. We found the Mourner within 30 minutes (at gps: 5.3421,-55.0944) were also a Guianan Schiffornis and a Saffron-crested Tyrant Manakin gave good views. A little further Black Manakin, Bronzy Jacamar and Rufous-crowned Elaenia were easily found making this a very successful morning (at a place that heats up very quickly). We then drove north a bit, passing the small village of Powakka to an area with lower bushes. Our main target here was Red-shouldered Tanager and even though it was very hot by now we located a pair within 10 minutes of leaving the car (around gps: 5.4056,-55.0534). Our last stop was at a site where Campina thrush had been seen recently, but it was hot and windy by now.

Colakreek, Kinderboerderij & Republiek
The Area of Colakreek, Kinderboerderij and Republiek all consists of open garden habitat next to primary forests which results in a very long species list that can be found here. We spend most time on a dirt road that starts at gps: 5.4667,-55.2301 and joins the road again 2km further. From there you can follow the road back to your starting point. This loop we walked several times giving different species each time. Around 5.4720,-55.2313 we found a fruiting tree where we spent a few hours enjoying the many birds that came in to feed. One morning we visited Republiek and walked along the road from here (gps: 5.4968,-55.2169). We then continued down the road to the loop again. Most people see Cayenne Jay in this area but we missed it here, luckily we saw two groups on the last morning in Hannover Savanna. If you look on googlemaps there seem to be several dirt roads in the area that go through good forest so there is definitely more to explore here.
South of airport

We had several gps points in the sand savannah south of the airport (entrance here gps: 5.44642, -55.2057). We visited briefly on two afternoons but did not explore the whole area since we had seen most targets already at Powakka and we were not sure if our car would be able to drive all the sandy bits.

Hannover Savanna

Next to where we slept in the Toucan lodge starts a sand savannah area with some adjacent forest. Since it was next to our accommodation, we explored it on our last morning (trail starts going south from gps: 5.4724, -55.1770). Green-tailed Goldenthroat was common in the sandy areas and it turned out to be a very good spot for flying macaws and parrots. We went into the forest (at 5.4666, -55.1795) where we found two groups of Cayenne Jays, our only Jays of the trip.

Zintete (Fredberg) area

We stayed 7 nights at Zintete lodge (gps: 4.6361,-55.4194) which gave us enough time to explore the surrounding forest. It is a basic lodge with a central space where meals are prepared and served and along the river several wooden cabins to sleep. We really enjoyed our stay with 7 days of excellent birding. During the 7 days we birded three main places: around the lodge, by car along the road, and the trail up to the Fredberg.

- Around the lodge: Already around the lodge many species can be found; when we arrived a female Guianan Red Cotinga showed up next to the cabins, Cocoa Thrush and Zigzag heron have territories nearby and each afternoon several Crimson Topaz perched on branches next to the river. There are some small trails behind the lodge where there was a territory of Spotted Antpitta and White-chested Puffbird. The entrance road (a dirt road of several hundred meters from the main road to the lodge) was one of the most productive areas of our stay. Here we had many big flocks (one including our only seen Capuchinbird), but also nice views of species such as Black-faced Hawk, Guianan Puffbird, Ferruginous-backed Antbird and many more.

- By car along the road: The Zintete lodge lies just of a very long logging road that cuts through the forest for many kilometers. This gives an excellent opportunity to drive and scout for canopy species or fruiting trees that attract parrots etc. Pompadour and Spangled Cotinga were seen regularly and also Purple-breasted Cotinga showed up a couple of times. We had more difficulty with Crimson Fruitcrow; we searched for many days without luck until day 7 when we drove along the logging road even further down where we found a female that gave great views at last (gps: 4.60098, -55.4810). What a relief. We then drove back and even found another one along the road at gps: 4.6014,-55.4733. Unfortunately, we did not find the Dusky Purpeltauf nor the Blue-backed Tanager.

- Trail up to the Fredberg: Named after Fred this 200m high Mountain offers an impressive view of the surrounding forest. For regular tourists Fred organizes trips to stay for one night on the mountain. For birdwatchers the top of the mountain is not that interesting but the trails at the start and going up provide excellent birding. We went there 2 (half) mornings, one afternoon and a full day. Along one of the trails is the Guianan Cock-of-the-rock hide. Since it was November the birds were not active yet and we had just one male on our visit, still showing very well. Rufous-throated Antbird was found at gps: 4.6374,-55.4736, surprisingly 2 birds solo and not as usual with army ants.

Brownsberg

We stayed 3 nights at Brownsberg in a decent room with shared bathroom (although we were the only guest in the 4-room building). Overall the area gave the impression of forgotten glory with most buildings having seen greater times and the restaurant being mostly empty except for us. It seems that more and more birding groups skip the Brownsberg entirely since most species can be easier seen at Zintete. Exception to this is the White-throated Pewee which we found along the entrance road at 4.9533,-55.1828 and also some species appeared to be more common here such as Grey-winged Trumpeter (they used to feed them until a couple of years ago and a tame group still hangs around), Black Curassow (also rather tame and 2 times seen along the trail to the Mazaroni viewpoint), Guianan Tyrannulet (seen and heard often), Black-throated Antshrike (one found at 4.947,-55.1873). Although bird activity was a bit low during our visit, there are nice trails to walk. The first 2 mornings we walked up and down to the radio tower (gps: 4.9288,-55.2103) resulting in more Trumpeters and a nice Musician Wren but the best surprise was an adult puma with 2 cubs that crossed the road. In the afternoons we explored the entrance road and the further trails around the top. One tree close to the main buildings was flowering and attracting a lot of insects. We spent some time here resulting in a (female) Racket-tailed Coquette.

ANNOTATED SPECIES LIST

We tried to keep detailed notes throughout the trip but especially commoner species might not have been written down daily. Trip list generated with iGoterra trips, see www.igoterra.com for details. In our view the best listing software/website!
